Investors returning

INVESTORS are making their return to the Tweed property market, but have already missed out on some good deals according to property expert Michael Matusik.

The independent real estate analyst said at a special panel meeting "Catching the Next Property Wave" held at Salt Village this week, that investors have missed out on profits by not already investing in Tweed property.

"In my opinion, with low interest rates and volatility at the lower-end of the market, investors should have got back into the market about six months ago. There are bargains."
